Words of the Week

Secular: Religion is kept separate from government

Boycott: Withdraw from commercial or social relations with a country or organization, as a punishment or protest

I want to once again thank everyone for their support in making this a successful STAAR administration. Let us now resume operations of effective instruction reflecting on strategies that focus on the students such as placing students in instructional groups that are based on the need of all students and maintains both group and individual accountability.

(NEW) April is the month of the Military Child. Since this week was celebrated last week, we will observe this day next Wednesday. We have approximately 13 students who fall into this category and we will be inviting them for a special luncheon with their military parent/guardian. This list will be shared with you so that they could be excused from class.

Supervision- Please ensure that you stand outside your doors to actively supervise students before your first and last class, and during transitions. Do not allow students to loiter. Please do not leave students unattended at any time in your classroom or in the hallway.
